ROUTE 66

Seligman was on the original Route 66. Today it has gained its name "Birthplace of Historic Route 66" due to the efforts of Seligman residents, who convinced the State of Arizona to dedicate Route 66 a historic highway. Seligman is the first stop heading west on the longest uninterrupted stretch of historic Route 66 and remains a popular destination for travelers. It is conveniently located and close to famous landmarks such as the Grand Canyon, Parashant National Monument, Supai, and Kaibab National Forest. Just off of Interstate 40, Flagstaff is a quick drive to the east and Kingman to the west.

Many come to experience the fun and eclectic town of Seligman. If this story reminds you of the adorable town called Radiator Springs depicted in Pixar's animated feature Cars, there is a reason for that! Seligman served as the inspiration for the storyline and topography of the little Route 66 town that had to fight for its survival after being by-passed by the interstate.
